1. [redacted], on 10 February 1953, three VP air force officers would arrive in Kamenz not before the evening, because their train was late. The officers wore olive drab uniforms with light blue pipings along the outer seams of their trousers, a VP cockade with a cluster of oak leaves and wings on their caps, and light blue collar patches.<sup>1</sup> a VP air force headquarters in Kamenz [redacted] was located at the Panzerkaserne in Kamenz. Three disassembled jet planes were, [redacted] available there for instruction purposes.

3.

From 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on 17 March, Yak-11s continuously practiced take-offs and circled over Kamenz airfield. Up to four planes were seen aloft at the same time. After the planes landed, their two-man crews were exchanged at the take-off point, where two radio trucks fitted with rod antennas were also observed. A take-off zone was marked off by chalk. From 20 to 25 Yak-18s were parked in front of the hangars at the west side of the field, about 10 Yak-11s, which participated in air activity, in its southwestern corner.<sup>2</sup>

A Dumbo type radar set was seen on the west side of the field. On this side, two emergency hangars covered with tarpaulins were also observed, while two other hangars measuring about 50 x 15 meters were under construction. Excavation work was going on at the eastern edge of the installation. The area south of the spur track was surrounded by a high brick wall. Within this area two permanent buildings about 80 x 25 meters large were being built. Vehicles were identified.

[REDACTED] 25X1

1. [REDACTED] Comment. Senior Lieutenant Baustian is known to be an instructor of the VP air in Kamenz. 25X1

2. [REDACTED] Comment. The 2d VP Air Regt is stationed at Kamenz. It is believed that elements of the 3d VP Air Regt from Bautzen also moved to this field, because of construction work at Bautzen-Litten airfield. In mid-February, 39 aircraft crates probably containing Yak-11s, arrived at Cottbus. [REDACTED] 25X1

[REDACTED] Some of these planes are probably already in use at Kamenz. 25X1
